Calculate your LVR

Loan to Value Ratio Calculator

You may be able to apply for a discounted interest rate based on your Loan to Value Ratio (LVR).

Your LVR is the amount you're looking to borrow, divided by the value of the property you want to buy[8] and expressed as a percentage. For instance, if you're borrowing $400,000 to buy a $500,000 property, your LVR would be 80%.

Estimated repayments and repayment scenario comparisons are estimates only based on the loan amounts, loan types and loan terms selected. The comparisons are indicative estimates for illustrative purposes only and are based on current interest rates (which may change). Comparison rate calculated on a loan amount of $150,000 over a term of 25 years based on monthly payments, including any applicable interest rate discounts. These rates are for secured loans only. WARNING: This Comparison Rate is true only for the examples given and may not include all fees and charges. Different terms, fees or other loan amounts might result in a different comparison rate. For interest only variable loans, the comparison rates are based on an initial 5 year interest only term. For fixed rate interest only loans, the comparison rates are based on an initial interest only period equal in term to the fixed period. The repayment calculator does not show all interest rates. Our home loan interest rates page shows all available rates, including special offers and discounts when borrowing 80% or less of the property value.

If a Variable Rate Loan is selected, the interest rate will be subject to change throughout the term of the Loan, which can impact on repayment amounts.

Results are based on approximate amortised scheduled repayments and do not take into account interest rate changes or other events that may change repayment amounts on a loan.

For fixed rate loans, once the fixed rate period expires, the loan reverts to a standard variable rate loan and repayment amounts will change.

For interest only loans, once the interest only period expires, the loan will revert to the applicable variable principal and interest rate for the remainder of the loan term (unless another interest only period is taken). At the end of the interest only period, minimum repayment amounts may increase to cover principal and interest. Interest only loans are not for everyone and you should consider if this is the right strategy for you.

Where a custom fixed or interest only rate has been selected, once the fixed or interest only period expires, the loan reverts to a standard variable rate loan with principal and interest repayments. In calculating these repayments, the repayment calculator will use the standard variable rate that most closely aligns with the Loan to Value Ratio (LVR) implied by the custom rate selected.

Interest rates are current as at Thursday, 19 February 2026 and are subject to change.

ANZ Home Loans are available for periods between of at least 1 year and up to 30 years in duration.
